With the rise of horse shows and road driving nowadays, the horse with plenty of good looks, action, soundness and speed, is the one that brings the fairest price. All of these virtues are combined in PATCHEN WILTON and there is nothing by the most accomplished breeding in the books. His sire is one of the greatest sons of George Wilkes, his dam a great producing daughter of Mambrino Patchen, his second dam a great race mare in her day and a producer.

A SMALLPOX SCARE.

Kentucky Will Be Quarantined Against Indiana.

Gov. Durbin, of Indiana, Says He Has Seen No Reason to Change His Mind in Regard to Smallpox Conditions.

Louisville, Ky., May 28.—At a meeting that began at 3 o'clock Tuesday afternoon and continued until after 11 p. m. the Kentucky state board of health Tuesday night declared a quarantine against the state of Indiana on account of smallpox in the southern part of the latter state. The quarantine is to go into effect at noon on Sunday, June 1. After that time no person can come into Kentucky from Indiana who can not show a certificate signed by duly authorized health officer showing that the bearer has been successfully vaccinated within five years. Railroads, bridge companies and ferries are prohibited from selling a ticket to any person intending to go into Kentucky who is not provided with a certificate of vaccination.

Passengers who travel through Indiana to reach Kentucky will not be required to produce a certificate if they have not stopped in Indiana.

Indianapolis, Ind., May 28.—The action of the Kentucky health authorities in quarantining against the state of Indiana on account of smallpox in the southern counties caused much unrest here Tuesday night when it became known.

The following smallpox cases in southern counties were reported in the last bulletin issued by the state board of health: Knox, 44; Daviess, 29; Gibson, 22; Posey, 2; Warrick, 61; Dubois, 20; Martin, 1; Lawrence, 12; Perry, 12; Floyd, 2; and Clark, 5.

Louisville, Ky., May 29.—The directors of the board of trade Wednesday appointed a committee to confer with the state board of health, to secure, if possible, a modification or withdrawal of the quarantine against Indiana which will be enforced, beginning Sunday, on account of smallpox in that state. The committee was appointed at the solicitation of a number of merchants in this city who fear that the enforcement of the order will be a serious inconvenience to business.

After a conference with President Mathews, of the Kentucky state board of health, the committee announced that it would report to the board of trade that the quarantine should be upheld, the committee having agreed with Dr. Mathews that the order was advisable.

Hundreds of persons were vaccinated in New Albany and Jeffersonville, Ind., Wednesday as a result of the quarantine order.

Inspectors will be placed on all trains coming into this city from Indiana as well as on the ferry boats and bridges between this city and Jeffersonville and New Albany and all persons coming into Kentucky from Indiana will be obliged to exhibit a certificate of vaccination.

Indianapolis, Ind., May 29.—The quarantine which Kentucky proposes to establish against Indiana is of the same character as that established by Kentucky against some of her own counties, according to Dr. J. N. Hurty's report of the statements of the Kentucky state board of health. Dr. Hurty, secretary of the Indiana state board of health, said Wednesday of the quarantine:

"The Kentucky authorities claim that most of their present smallpox cases on the Ohio border have been traced to Indiana. They said they had quarantined Kentucky counties because said counties would not take reasonable action against the spread of smallpox, and what they proposed to do to Indiana was exactly the same as had been done in their own state. They have in the past also quarantined against Tennessee."

Gov. Durbin returned from French Lick Wednesday afternoon. He said he had seen no reason to change his mind in regard to smallpox conditions, and could see no reason for a quarantine by Kentucky against Indiana.

He evaded a question as to whether he would now withdraw his opposition to drawing on the emergency fund to fight smallpox but gave the impression that until conditions should grow worse than he now believes them to be would not change his mind.

The Louisville division of the Pennsylvania had advertised a popular excursion to Louisville Sunday. This has not been called off as the quarantine is not to take effect until Sunday noon. The excursion will reach Louisville before it goes into force.

It is said that an attempt will be made to beat the quarantine by traveling to Cincinnati and thence to Kentucky. Gov. Durbin Wednesday issued call for a meeting of the state board of health Thursday. He said he had not as yet received any official notice of the action of the Kentucky authorities.

School Boys' Fatal Fight.

St. Joseph, Mo., May 28.—Jacob Graham, 13, a school boy, confessed to the police that he was responsible for the death of Robert C. Hunter, aged 14, who was found dead at his home. The boys had quarreled and fought.

Explosion in a Mine.

Punxsutawney, Pa., May 28.—An unknown Hungarian was killed and three others badly burned by an explosion in the Ealer mines. Samuel Bell, one of the injured, will probably die. The property loss is not known.

IS AGAIN IN ERUPTION.

Black Smoke Pouring Forth From Mont Pelee.

Great Quantities of Volcanic Dust Fell on the British Steamer Savan While Passing Martinique Island.

Roseau, Island of Dominica, May 29.—The British steamer Savan, from London for Barbadoes and West Indian ports, has arrived here. She passed Mont Pelee, Island of Martinique, at 9 o'clock Wednesday morning, when a thick, black smoke was arising from the volcano and the officers of the Savan believed from the great quantity of dust which fell on the steamer that another eruption had occurred.

Fort De France, Island of Martinique, May 29.—A tremendous explosion of very black smoke from Mont Pelee at a quarter before 9 o'clock Wednesday morning accentuated the fear entertained for the safety of Geo. Kennan, the American author, who with a land party, has been examining the northern part of the island. The governor of Martinique, M. L'Huerte, was at once seen with the object of arranging a rescue party to proceed by land in connection with the voyage along the coast of the United States cruiser Cincinnati, should such steps appear necessary.

At about 11 o'clock Wednesday morning Fernand Clero, a wealthy land proprietor of Martinique, arrived here and announced that Mr. Kennan and his party were safe on a plantation at the north of the island.

Passengers who travel through Indiana to reach Kentucky will not be required to produce a certificate if they have not stopped in Indiana.

Indianapolis, Ind., May 28.—The action of the Kentucky health authorities in quarantining against the state of Indiana is of the same character as that established by Kentucky against some of her own counties, according to Dr. J. N. Hurty's report of the statements of the Kentucky state board of health. Dr. Hurty, secretary of the Indiana state board of health, said Wednesday of the quarantine:

THE Northern Presbyterian church has decided to abandon the harsher features of Calvanism, which shows that the leaders of thought in this great denomination have advanced with the times, and that the fervid desire to see his enemies burn both in this and the next world, which was the moving spirit with this French fanatic, have not been kept to those who follow his footsteps in courageous loyalty to the doctrine of God's sovereignty.

KENTUCKY would do well to copy the Illinois juvenile court law, which provides that no child under twelve years of age may be legally detained in a police station, and no child under sixteen may be confined in a prison with adult prisoners. Police statistics in Chicago show that 17,000 children were arrested there last year. Such wholesale training of criminals is horrible to contemplate. In Louisville there ought to be a juvenile house of detention, where youthful offenders could be safely kept, and they should be tried by a special juvenile court, not with a view to punishing them, but rather for the purpose of reforming them.—Louisville Commercial.

Monday was one of the poorest court days, so far as the stock market was concerned, ever known. Not more than 200 cattle were on the market, and nearly all were very common. Five cents was the highest price obtained during the day.—Winchester Democrat.

Harry Crawford sold to Brock & Bailsback, Friday, 100 hogs, wt., 250 lbs., at 6½ cents. J. A. Nash sold to Sam Hodgins a lot of trimmed lambs for delivery July 15, at 5½ cents. Tom Brock sold to Sam K. Hodgins, 79 extra eggs for immediate delivery, wt., 240 lbs., at 6½ cent.—Winchester Democrat.

Clay & Woodford shipped on Wednesday, 32 yearlings from Runnymede and Raceland to New York. They will be sold at auction on Tuesday, and horsemen predict this will be the banner sale of yearlings of 1902.

At Kansas, Wednesday, two cars of cattle, weight 1,475 pounds, sold at $7.50 and 39 head averaging 1,636, at $7.40. Two car loads weighing 1,100, sold at $8.80. These are the highest prices ever paid there.

Buckskin Bill's Show Here To-Day—An Immense Crowd Turns Out to See the Parade.

Buckskin Bill's Wild West Show arrived in the city early this morning and the tents were pitched at the show grounds on Walnut street.

This morning at 10 o'clock a parade, made up of several bands, stage coaches, men and women, rough riders, Indians, Mexicans, etc., passed through the principal streets and was viewed by a large crowd.

Among the most noted of the Indians are Chief "Big Foot," Chief "Short Bull," from the Pine Ridge agency, South Dakota, Chief "Red Bear," of the Corn Creek district and "Bear Shield," sub-chief, from the Wounded Knee district. The paraphernalia used by these people is something fancy and they take the greatest of care in preserving it.

Horses, Bronchos, etc., to the number of 175, are used at every performance. Some of them are yet untamed and gave the men in charge a great deal of trouble.

At the performance this afternoon Jno. Biddle rode a horse, wild and unruly, and the feat was such as to bring forth loud cheers. His equal has never been seen. Elmer Mandenall, crack shot, is deserving of much praise. His work was enough to convince the people that he is an artist in his line.

There was a large turn-out to the afternoon performance and indications point to a repetition of the same tonight. The show will certainly prove of interest to both young and old.—Cincinnati, O., Enquirer, June 14, 1902. One big day, Paris, Wednesday, June 4.

Is Time Any Object?

Would you like more time for rest, for recreation, for calling, for shopping, for the enjoyment of your home, or to give your servant more time to do other work? A Gas Range in your kitchen would save a whole lot of time, which you could with pleasure and profit devote to other things. Wouldn't it be an object to cut 50 per cent of the time now spent in cooking?

Bourbon College Entertainment.

The Delsarte, Elocution and Musical entertainment given by the young ladies of the Bourbon Female College at the Grand Opera House on last Tuesday night was pronounced by everyone present to be one of the most enjoyable entertainments of the kind they ever witnessed. Prof. and Mrs. Thompson and Miss VanArsdale, their able assistant, must indeed feel flattered at the many compliments which have been bestowed upon them.

The entertainment opened with a piano duo, "Rhapsodie Hongroise," by Miss May McCorkle and Signor D'Anna. It was a very difficult selection, excellently rendered, and a rare treat to the music lovers present. Miss Mary Ashbrook next rendered a recitation entitled "Sister Earnestine's Beau," in a manner which captivated the audience. She is a very clever little lady and as an elocutionist will rank with many of the older ones with vaster experience. The next was a vocal selection, "Barcarole, Raw Us Swiftly," rendered by Misses Sallie Daniel, Jennie Lynn, Idella Sparks, Bessie Edwards and Signor D'Anna. Miss Josephine Hayden admirably rendered a humorous recitation entitled "A Georgia Wedding."

"The Revel of the Naiads," the first of the Delsarte exercises, revealed as pretty and graceful set of American beauties as one could find anywhere. The different figures formed, aided by the calcium effects, made some very pretty pictures, and the appreciation of the audience was attested by vigorous applause.

These young ladies were under the supervision of Miss VanArsdale, and their success was certainly a great compliment to her. The young ladies participating in the drills were Misses Ada Acorn, Mary Ashbrook, Florence Beckett, Nellie Whitsitt, Nellie Fee, Bessie Stone, Bessie Stivers, Mona Smith, Mary Fithian Hutchcraft.

Part Two opened with a piano selection, "Ouverture de Guillaume Tell," by Miss McCorkle and Signor D'Anna.

"As the Moon Rose," a patriotic recitation with mechanical effects and special stage settings, was rendered by Miss Sallie Daniel, and was undoubtedly one of the hits of the evening. Miss Daniel has a splendid well modulated voice, graceful gestures and her fair face made an exceedingly pretty picture to look upon as she described how the young heroine saved her lover from the death of a spy by a wild ride a la Raul Revere.

The second edition of the Delsarte exercises, entitled "Scarf Fantastics," was participated in by the following young ladies: Misses Mary Weatherly, Idella Sparks, Elizabeth Beard, Nancy Witherspoon, Pearl Major, Edna Green, Nancy Stagg, Mary Burdin, Ada Acorn and Elizabeth Woodford. Like the first edition this was perfectly rendered. The young ladies looked sweet in flowing gowns of pink, and each figure was applauded.

The little favorite Miss Willie Boardman, rendered a humorous recitation entitled "Smith's Boy." It made such a hit with the audience that it called to mind her great success of last year, "The Little Boy and the Bear," and she was compelled to respond to a vociferous encore by reciting that.

The entertainment concluded with three scenes from the Court of Cupid, participated in by all the young ladies, assisted by the little sunbeam, Miss Lizzie Parker, who made a captivating and ideal Cupid.

In all the entertainment was a decided treat, and was a fitting finale to a very successful term of the college, and the large audience present was a compliment to Prof. and Mrs. Thompson in their efforts to give Paris and Bourbon county a first-class school for young ladies.

A large audience at the Christian church witnessed the closing exercises of the College for the present term. After prayer by Eld. Lloyd Darsie and a piano selection by Misses Sallie Daniel and Jennie Lynn, Prof. S. M. Jefferson delivered an eloquent address to the juniors, his subject being "Educational Aims." A selection was the presentation of the diploma to the graduate, Miss Mason Talbott by Prof. Thompson, the exercises concluding with a selection by Misses Mary Hibler, Eddie Spears, Fannie Johnson, and Gertrude Renick.

LITTLE SLED IN THE ATTIC.

Winter again; and I turn once more
To my childhood's home for a holiday,
And lift the latch of the attic door
And climb its rickety, worn stairway.

Ancient umbrellas, rent and torn,
Lanterns, saddles, and horseshoes old,
Trenchers and cradles, and samplers worn,
Trinkets of silver, and bits of gold;

Garments so quaintly out of style,
Books and parchments, yellow and dim,
Tools that no workman's art beguile,
And dished no house-mother conjures in;

Through all the rubbish I find my way
To my dear little brother's cherished sled;
It has made us happy for many a day,
And its sight wakes memories long since dead.

Handsome carriages, built for ease,
Railway palace-cars, rich and grand,
Steamships plowing the mighty seas,
Jeweled treasures from every land—

All from my vision pass away!
Rarest melodies cease to flow!
And the sweetest chimes that I hear to-day
Are the bells of a little sled over the snow.

Never a song of the vanished years,
Full of the rhythmic notes of joy,
Can thrill my spirit or free my tears
Like the musical laugh of a happy boy.

Do you not hear it—so silvery and clear?
Have you heard any other ring out like this?

He is laughing aloud in glory now,
Through a thorny pathway he trod to bliss.

Call me weakly, ye women white,
Laugh as ye will, stout-hearted men!
I'd give for one hour of the old delight,
All I have sought or known since then.

O, the years! O, my brother! I miss him sore,
Who rides over pavements the angels tread,

In the City where nobody sorrows more,
And they laugh and shine who were sad and dead.

And I vow once more to be pure as snow,
To lighten the burdens that others feel,
To smile when the selfish tears would flow,
And when proud and bitter to humbly kneel.

With my face to the morning I'll travel on;
With my brow to the stars, if I fall I'll lie;

I will go to him who will not return,
In the Land of the Holy, some by and by.

And through the grace of the One Divine,
Who bade us live as a little child,

I will keep my trust, I will bid my time,
Till I laugh with my brother—the undied.

—Rev. Frances E. Townsley, in Union Signal.

ably thinks if he gives us a longer ride he will be able to charge a proportionately larger fee at the end. The Parisian cabby is very like his London brother."

He then proceeded to describe to me an exceedingly funny adventure that had befallen him once in Chicago. The recital lasted some minutes, and all the time we were still pursuing our way in a direction exactly opposite to that which I knew we should be following. At last I could stand it no longer.

"The man's obviously an idiot," I said, "and I am going to tell him so."

"I shouldn't do that, Mr. Fairfax," said Hayle, in a different voice to that which he had previously addressed me. "I had my own reasons for not telling you before, but the matter has already been arranged. The man is only carrying out my instructions."

"What do you mean by already arranged?" I asked, not without some alarm.

"I mean that you are my prisoner, Mr. Fairfax," he said. "You see, you are rather a difficult person to deal with, if I may pay you such a compliment, and one has to adopt heroic measures in order to cope with you."

"Then you have been humbugging me all this time," I cried; "but you've let the cat out of the bag a little too soon. I think I'll bid you good-by."

I was about to rise from my seat and open the door, but he stopped me. In his hand he held a revolver, the muzzle of which was in unpleasant proximity to my head.

"I must ask you to be good enough to sit down," he said. "You had better do so, for you cannot help yourself. If you attempt to make a fuss I pledge you my word I shall shoot you, let the consequences to myself be what they may. You know me, and you can see that I am desperate. My offer to those men was only a bluff. I wanted to quiet any suspicions you might have in order that I might get you into my hands. As you can see for yourself, I could not have succeeded better than I have done. I give you my word that you shall not be hurt, provided that you do not attempt to escape or call for help. If you do, then you know exactly what to expect, and you will have only yourself to blame. Be a sensible man, and give in to the inevitable."

He held too many cards for me. I could see at a glance that I was outmaneuvered, and that there was nothing to be gained by a struggle.

Ten minutes later the cab came to a standstill, there was the sound of opening gates, and a moment later we drove into a stone-paved courtyard.

CHAPTER X.

If you could have traveled the world at that moment, from north to south, and from east to west, I believe you would have found it difficult to discover a man who felt as foolish as I did when I entered the gloomy dwelling-place as Hayle's prisoner. To say that I was mortified by the advantage he had obtained over me would not express my feelings in the least. To think that I, George Fairfax, who had the reputation of being so difficult a man to trick, should have allowed myself to fall into so palpable a trap, seemed sufficiently incredible as to be almost a matter for laughter rather than rage. There was worse, however, behind. Miss Kitwater had been so trustful of my capability for bringing the matter to a successful conclusion, that I dared not imagine what she would think of me now. Whenever I looked at it, it was obvious that Hayle must scold. On the one side, he kept me locked up while he not only made his escape from Paris, but by so doing cut off every chance of my pursuing him afterwards; on the other, he might console himself with the almost certain knowledge that I should be discredited by those who had put their trust in me. How could it very well be otherwise? I had committed the criminal folly of accepting hospitality from the enemy, and from that moment I should not be seen. The natural supposition would be that I had been bought, and that I was not only taking no further interest in the case, but that I was keeping out of the way of those who did. To add to my misery, I could easily imagine the laugh that would go up on the other side of the channel when the trick that had been played upon me became known. But having so much else to think of, that fact, you may be sure, did not trouble me very much. There were two things, however, about which I was particularly anxious; one was to set myself right with Miss Kitwater, and the other was to get even, at any cost, with Hayle. The first seemed the most difficult.

It must not be supposed that when I had alighted from the carriage I had given up all hope of escape. On the contrary, had it not been for the presence of three burly fellows, who immediately took up their places beside me, I fancy I should have made a dash for liberty. Under the circumstances, however, to have attempted such a thing would have been the height of folly. Five to one, that is to say, if I include the coachman in the number, with the gates closed behind me, were too long odds, and however hard I might have fought, I could not possibly have been successful.

"Perhaps you will be kind enough to step into the house," said Hayle. "The air is cold out here, and I am afraid lest you might take a chill."

Before complying with his order I looked around me once more, to see if there was any chance of escape. But so far as I could see there was not one. I accordingly followed one of my captors into the building, the remainder bringing up the rear.

From what I could see of the house with the help of the light from a solitary candle hanging in a sconce upon the wall, it had once been a handsome building. Now, however, it had fallen sadly to decay. The ceiling of the hall had at one time been richly painted but now only blurred traces of the design remained. Crossing the hall, my guide opened a door at the further end, in obedience to a request from Hayle. I entered this room, to find myself standing in a fine apartment, so far as size went, but sadly lacking in comfort where its furniture was concerned. There was a bed, a table, three rough chairs, and an entirely inadequate square of carpet upon the floor. I have already said that it was a large room, and when I add that it was lighted only by two candles, which stood upon the table in the center, some idea will be formed of its general dreariness.

"Now, look here, Mr. Hayle," I said, "the time has come for us to have a serious talk together. You know as well as I do that in kidnaping me you are laying yourself open to very serious consequences. If you think that by so doing you are going to prevent me from eventually running you to earth, you are very much mistaken. You have obtained a temporary advantage over me, I will admit; but that advantage will not last. Do not flatter yourself that it will."

"I am not so sure upon that point," said Hayle, lighting a cigarette as he spoke. "If I did not think so I should not have gone to all this trouble and expense. But why make such a fuss about it? You must surely understand, Mr. Fairfax, that your profession necessarily entails risks. This is one of them. You have been paid to become my enemy. I had no personal quarrel with you. You can scarcely blame me, therefore, if I retaliate when I have an opportunity. I don't know what you may think of it, but the mere fact of your dining with me to-night is very likely to go hard with you, so far as your clients are concerned. Would it be a good advertisement for the famous George Fairfax to have it known that, while he was taking his clients' money, he was dining pleasantly in Paris with the man they were paying him to find? I laid my trap for you, but I must confess that I had not very much faith in its success. Your experience should have made you more wary. A student of human character, such as you are, should have known that the leopard cannot change his spots, or the tiger his—"

"If you continue in this strain much longer," I said, "I'll endeavor to stop your tongue, whatever it may cost me. Now, either let me out, or get out of the room yourself. I want to see no more of you while I am in this house."

He blew a cloud of smoke, and then answered nonchalantly:

"You had better occupy yourself thinking your stars that you are let off so easily. At one time I was tempted to have you put out of the way altogether. I am not quite certain it wouldn't be safer, even now. It could be done so easily, and no one would be any the wiser. I know two men now in Paris who would gladly run the risk for the sake of the ill-will they bear you. I must think it over." "Then think it over on the other side of that door," I said, angrily. "Play the same traitorous trick on me as you did on Kitwater and Codd if you like, but you shall not stay in the same room with me now."

My reference to Kitwater and Codd must have touched him on a raw spot, for he winced, and then tried to bluff it off.

"I rather fancy Messrs. Kitwater and Codd will have just such kindly things to say concerning you in the future as they do about me now," he said, as he moved toward the door. "And now I wish you good-by. As I leave Paris almost immediately, I don't suppose I shall have the pleasure of seeing you again. For your own sake I should ad-

I WAS ABOUT TO ARISE FROM MY SEAT AND OPEN THE DOOR, BUT HE STOPPED ME.

I was about to arise from the carriage I had given up all hope of escape. ## A SHORT TRIBUTE.

To the memory of Mr. Ben Schooler and Mrs. John Stipp, deceased, and Miss Katarah Schooler, who still survives, foster parents of the Gorham children.

In the passing away of Uncle Ben Schooler and Aunt Martha Stipp, we feel we have lost two of our best earthly friends.

In Uncle Ben, we found the good friend and wise counsellor, upon whose judgment we could always rely and whose kind heart always responded to the many calls which the adoption and rearing of foster children necessarily made upon foster parents.

In Aunt Martha, we found always the tender heart and sweet mother love for which the hearts of children always yearn and missing which, they miss so much of the heavenly part of earth's blessings. Her life's history is one unbroken record of Christian service and devotion to her family and we, her foster children, she always gave her best, with never thought for self, and left vacant a place in the hearts and lives of a loving husband and devoted children, sister children, sister and friends, which no other can ever fill. She has been called home, but the influence of her life among us will live and bear fruit for the Master in the hearts and lives of everyone who came under her sweet influence, and we do not mourn as those who cannot be comforted, for we know full well that heaven will be sweeter and fairer for us all with the bright faces of our loved ones waiting to welcome us when we step across the narrow threshold from our earthly tenement to the "house not made with hands eternal in the heavens." To Him that overcometh, the same shall be clothed in white raiment.

Of the dear aunt, who now alone remains with us, we must accord all the praise that a life devoted to the best interests of those she has loved and cherished so well demands, and our petitions rise to the Giver of all good and perfect gifts that He will spare her yet these many years to counsel and aid us as we tread the wine-press of this, our earthly pilgrimage. These words but feebly voice our gratitude to our dear foster parents, but we know tribute is due and only grieve at its insufficiency.

"The Lord gave and the Lord hath taken away, blessed be the name of the Lord." Mrs. W. J. Ross.

CATARRH

The treatment of Catarrh with antiseptic and astringent washes, lotions, salves, medicated tobacco and cigarettes or any external or local application, is just as senseless as would be kindling a fire on top of the pot to make it boil. True, these give temporary relief, but the cavities and passages of the head and the bronchial tubes soon fill up again with mucus.

Taking cold is the first step towards Catarrh, for it checks perspiration, and the poisonous acids and vapors which should pass off through the skin, are thrown back upon the mucous membrane or inner skin, producing inflammation and excessive flow of mucus, much of which is absorbed into the blood, and through the circulation reaches every part of the system, involving the Stomach, Kidneys and other parts of the body. When the disease assumes the dry form, the breath becomes exceedingly foul, blinding headaches are frequent, the eyes red, hearing affected and a constant ringing in the ears. No remedy that does not reach the polluted blood can cure Catarrh. S. S. S. expels from the circulation all offensive matter, and when rich, pure blood is again coursing through the body the mucous membranes become healthy and the skin active, all the disagreeable, painful symptoms disappear, and a permanent, thorough cure is effected.

S. S. S. being a strictly vegetable blood purifier does not derange the Stomach and digestion, but the appetite and general health rapidly improve under its tonic effects. Write us about your case and get the best medical advice free. Book on blood and skin diseases sent on application.

Brain Food Nonsense.

Another ridiculous food fad has been branded by the most competent authorities. They have dispelled the silly notion that one kind of food is needed for brain, another for muscles, and still another for bones. A correct diet will not only nourish a particular part of the body, but it will sustain every other part. Yet however good your food may be, its nutriment is destroyed by indigestion or dyspepsia. You must prepare for their appearance or prevent their coming by taking regular doses of Greens August Flower, the favorite medicine of the healthy millions. A few doses aids digestion, stimulates the liver to healthy action, purifies the blood, and makes you feel buoyant and vigorous. You can get Dr. G. G. Green's reliable remedies at W. T.
